Introduction

Nelson Mandela said “Education is the only means by which the son/daughter of a farmer can become a medical doctor”. However, the absence of books to read from is making such dreams a far reality for many students in rural communities in Cameroon. Books To Africa which is a UK registered based charity organization is championing the reduction of book famine in Africa. Through CEED CAMEROON, Books To Africa has donated 1,626 education text books to GHS Bafia which represents one of the biggest high school within the Sub Division without a Library.

Logistics

The handing over was done on the 14th of March 2016 in which CEED CAMEROON joined the school to celebrate the Common Wealth Day. This school is situated within a rural community in which most parents are living far below the poverty line with almost no income to buy books for their children.

Impact

The significance of books to the life of a student and to these students cannot be underestimated. The hundreds of students who never had a text book to read from are now being able to go to the library and read from the variety of books donated. While the country coordinator for CEED CAMEROON challenged the students to make use of the wealth of knowledge found in the books, the Principal also encouraged students to use the books and improve on their academics and urge teachers to make use of the library and enrich their curriculum.

Conclusion

CEED CAMEROON is a registered NGO in Cameroon that provides a platform for International Corporation in the field of education and entrepreneurial development in rural communities in Cameroon.
